

Letter Formation Guide

If your family uses more than one language, talk with your child about how reading and writing can look different in each one. For example, in English and French we read and write from left to right, top to bottom. But in Arabic, it's from right to left, still top to bottom.

This chart shows the fastest way of forming the letters of the English alphabet. Start with your pencil on the red dot and follow the arrow. Have fun practicing the letters using a pencil and paper, a tray of sand and your finger, or with playdough!
